b. A recurring review of active projects by representatives of your office.

This Division, serving for the Comptroller, will (1) review the project and financial data sheet to determine program or activity classification and estimated cost, (2) determine and certify as to availability of funds, and (3) establish and maintain project control records to reflect the authorizations, allotments, and obligations thereunder.

b. After the project has been approved by appropriate authority, written notification of the approval is sent to the Budget Division to provide authority to (1) adjust the records to the amount approved, and (2) issue allotments as required within amount approved.

3. It is realized that the goal of an effective recurring review of all proprietary and subsidy project budgets has not yet been accomplished. The Comptroller's Office through the Budget Division, shall, to the extent that it has adequate staff, keep current on the budget situation in all such projects and review them with the offices or divisions administering the project as important program adjustments or major financial adjustments are brought forward and, at least once a year, on an over-all basis. In addition, there will be a review of the budgetary requirements of projects, during the development of the budget program, by representatives of the Comptroller's Office.

4. A growing emphasis recognizing the Agency responsibility in this area should be continued within the capabilities of your Budget Division.
